

Unit 4: The SkyChapter 11. Chanda Mama Counts the Stars*Summary

Chanda Mama, the playful Moon, loved counting stars each night but often fell asleep and forgot his count. Frustrated and upset by his inability to complete the task, he cried. The Sun, seeing his tears, reassured him that the number of stars matched the number of lovely children on Earth. This made Chanda Mama happy, and from then on, he looked at the stars and children with joy, smiling each night as he shone brightly in the sky.

New words

- Round : having the shape of a circle or a ball
 Count : to calculate the total number or amount of something
 Tears : a drop of water that comes from your eye when you are crying

ExerciseLet us think*A. Answer the following.

- Does the Moon look the same every night?
 Ans. No, the Moon does not look the same every night.
- What did Chanda Mama try to count?
 Ans. Chanda Mama tried to count stars.
- Why did Chanda Mama fall asleep?
 Ans. Chanda Mama fall asleep because chanda Mama tried to counting stars.
- Who helped Chanda Mama?
 Ans. The sun helped Chanda Mama.
- Complete the sentence:
 The number of stars in the sky is the same as the number of children.

B. Think and say.

- I call the Moon, Chanda Mama. What do you call him in your language?
 Ans. I call the moon as chandrama.
- Chanda Mama was not able to count the stars. What things can you not count?
 Ans. I cannot count the trees, plants, birds, animals, people, shops, vehicles, etc.

3. The Moon is visible during the night. What can you see in the night sky?

Ans. Along with the moon, we can see the stars during the night sky.

Let us learn

Fill in the blanks with 'here' or 'there'.

1. The students are playing kabaddi there.
2. Here is your shirt.
3. Here is my bicycle.
4. I went to Chandigarh last year. My brother lived there.
5. This is my bench. I sit here with my friends.

Let us listen

A. In the story, we read that the stars were too many to be counted.

Now, your teacher will read out a list of items for you. Put the items in the correct column in the given table.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Children in the classroom. | 5. Fingers on your right hand. |
| 2. Flowers in a garden. | 6. Children in your city or town. |
| 3. Books in the library. | 7. Pages in your English notebook. |
| 4. Pencils in your pencil box. | 8. The hairs on your head. |

Can be counted easily	Too many to be counted
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Children in the classroom. • Flowers in a garden. • Books in the library. • Pencils in your pencil box. • Fingers on your right hand. • Pages in your English notebook. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Children in your city or town. • The hairs on your head.

Let us write

A. It was a full moon night. Children had come out to see the Moon. Complete the conversation they had by picking the words from the help box.

Help Box

a camera for the picture, so bright and big,
says the full moon looks very beautiful, let's take a picture

- Govind : Wow, look!
- Safura : The moon looks so big and bright.
- Sukanya : Isn't it?
- Dhruv : My grandfather says the full moon looks very beautiful.
- Ramani : Let us take a picture.
- Safura : My mother has a camera for the picture.
- Dhruv : Come. Stand here and let's take a picture.
- Govind : The moon is so bright and big.